

Spirit & Place

2009

November 6-15

inspiring places

A Civic Festival of the Arts,
Humanities, and Religion

Discovering Indy's Green Velvet Glove, Sunday, November 8

Some cities in the United States boast of their Emerald Necklace — a series of connected parks and parkways encircling their communities.

Unique to Indianapolis is our Green Velvet Glove — our rivers, creeks, runs, parks and parkways connecting the heart of the city to the suburbs in green space.

On Sunday, November 8, learn about the American city planning genius George Kessler — who designed our city and its green velvet glove a century ago — and his multi-functional approach to the plan for an Ideal American City.

- Join us for a morning bike & chat on Fall Creek Parkway
- In the afternoon, switch to hiking shoes for a walk & chat on one of the fingers of the glove — Pleasant Run, Pogues Run, Fall Creek, White River, or Little/Big Eagle Creek.
 - End the day sharing your inspiring memories and images in a Public Conversation at the Athenaeum, downstairs ballroom.

Food and refreshments will be available for purchase.

Please check the website: www.spiritandplace.org for up-to-date meeting places

Or contact, Tina Jones, IndyParks Planner, at cpjones@indy.gov, 327-7041 (office) or (cell) 544-9458

A Project of The Polis Center,

IU School of Liberal Arts, IUPUI